

Kenwood House Bench

A fine specialist painted bench with upholstered seat. A design strongly attributed to Robert Adam can be seen in the Entrance/Dining Room of Kenwood House. The bench with profusely and finely carved end supports with a running frieze of anthemion centred by a lion mask and bordered by oval paterae. The two scrolled and fluted legs unified by swags of bellflowers terminating in lions paw feet, the side rails similarly carved with anthemion and paterae.

To be upholstered in the clients own material.
